

Garry's pencil box

It was time to go back to school. Only a few days are left for summer vacations to end. Garry and his mom are preparing for school. They make a list of books they need for the new term and set out to the book store to buy them. They buy the books and now they go to another shop to buy a new pencil box for Garry.

There are many pencil boxes in the shop, of different sizes and shapes. Some are shaped like a bus or a car and some have a picture of Ben 10 or Thomas the Engine over them. Garry doesn't like any of them. He wants one that has buttons and would separately open each of the sections of the box where he could keep a sharpener, a rubber, a ruler and a few pencils. And the color of his pencil box must be red.

Garry's mom soon got tired of going to shop after shop looking for the pencil box Garry wanted. She was also angry over him. At last, in one shop they found what Garry wanted but to his dismay, it was blue in color and it was the last piece available. Garry had no other choice but to go for one that was there!
