The Library

Yawar and Yusra are very happy today. Its Friday and each Friday, their parents take them to the library to borrow new books for themselves.

They both love to read books and they wait impatiently for this day to arrive so they could return the previous books and borrow new ones from there.

At the library, they both rushed to the Kid's Corner and picked up their favorite story books. They read for a while there, next they selected what books they wanted to take home with them.

"Oh, God! What's that?" said their father, "So many books? You are allowed to select only two books each!"

Yawar and Yusra were sad. They wanted a lot of books but they took out only two each and kept the rest of them back into the shelf.
